23 Cubs Enjoy Weekend Camp At Claresholm

On Friday night, June 16, 23 members of the First Vulcan "A" Wolf Cub Pack left the Cub Hall for a two-day camp at the Claresholm Cub Campsite, returning Sunday night.

The camp was run under the leadership of Jerry Wylie, with the assistance of Helen Pearson, Ruth Richardson, Tom, Ted and Pat Wylie, Albert Earl and Al Dakin. Chief cook was George Richardson with Dianna Earl, Vivian and Sharlaine Wylie as helpers.

Despite the damp weather conditions the spirit and enthusiasm in camp were very good. Many Cub activities were carried out, along with several interesting and informative hikes. Each Cub constructed a letter holder to be given to their fathers for Father's Day.

On Sunday the camp was visited by Bill Ritzgen, president of the Claresholm Cub and Scout Association and Father Ted Wier, who gave the boys a most enjoyable talk.

The camp brought the activities of the pack to a close for another season.

Good Deeds W.I. Plans Picnic In July

The Good Deeds Women's Institute met at the Nanton home of Mrs. Ethel McMasters Sr. where twelve members and two visitors gathered.

Mrs. Ernie Nobert, vice-president, called the meeting to order following the usual ritual with Mrs. Bob Hutton next reading the May minutes.

The only correspondence was a thank-you note from Charlean and Allan Fisher.

The courtesy committee had nothing to report. Mrs. Clarence Brown gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Bruce White read an item dealing with "jiffy-foods" from the C.A.C. bulletin.

Members were reminded that there is no meeting next month but were encouraged to attend the annual picnic at the Clarence Brown grove in July.

Mrs. Anna Montgomery and Mrs. Ethel McMasters, together, entertained the ladies with an interesting commentary on the Provincial Institute conference held in Edmonton.

The hostess, Mrs. Ethel McMasters, assisted by Mrs. Anna Montgomery and Mrs. Bruce White served a tasty salad, buns and cake. The tea raffle was won by Mrs. Sam White.

Weather Cuts Attendance

Full Slate Of Races At McGregor Meet Despite Day's Delay

Rainy weather cut attendance at the first day of the Lake McGregor Race Meet, June 9, and forced postponement of the second day's event until the following Monday.

Although attendance was down both days, pari-mutuel betting held up well and race meet officials were pleased with the support received despite the uncertain weather.

Linda Beaudin of Cluny was officially crowned as Race Meet Queen and the transistor radio prize was won by Mrs. C. Severn of Enchant.

Crops Healthy But Weeds Are Problem

Starting Friday evening, showers fell over most of the county during the weekend, ranging from about a half-inch to a good inch. The weather was sunny and warm Monday and Tuesday of this week and crops are making good growth. Weeds are a problem this year and aerial spraying will likely be popular if fields remain wet and soggy.

Scattered showers were again forecast for Wednesday.

Manpower Auction Is Kinsmen Project

A "manpower auction" will be the last project of the Vulcan Kinsmen Club for the current season and will be held at the consignment auction sale being conducted by Wally's Auction Service at the DonRon sales lot this coming Saturday, June 24.

Each of the Kin members has volunteered eight hours work for the highest bidder for his services, with the money going to the Kinsmen fund for community betterment. The auction of Kin members' services will start at 3:00 p.m. Arrangements between the employer and the employee he "purchases" for a day will be completed at the sale. Kinsmen will wash cars and dishes, clean boots and barns, take care of babies and cows or do similar work. At this sale the employer sets the wages, which will be the amount he pays at the auction.

At the last Kinsmen meeting on June 15, business included making preparations for a float to be entered in the July 1 parade, a report on the Tote Gote draw which will be completed early in July and a report on the Babe Ruth baseball team sponsored by the club. Uniforms of the team will be called in to be drycleaned and have crests sewn on.

The second Kinsmen-sponsored playground, to be built at the new centennial park, will be completed this fall after landscaping has been completed by the town. Repairs to equipment at the first playground will be made immediately. Cairns will be erected at both playgrounds and the foundation for the first one is now completed. The cairn will be built by a contractor.

To wind up the current term, Kinsmen and Kinettes will hold a corn roast on Saturday evening. The executive for the 1967-68 term is as follows: Keith Aiken, past president; Cleo Schmidt, president; Del Olsen, vice-president; Earl Hughes, secretary; Jim Koons, registrar; Bill Hilt, treasurer; Dave Philpot, bulletin editor; Bob Petrosky, Mel Jordan and Amond Hyslip, directors.

Hydrostatic Drive Tractor Introduced By IHC

Introduction of the first hydrostatic drive farm tractor was announced here today by R. J. Willard, general manager of Willard Equipment Ltd.

Commenting on the new tractor just released by International Harvester Company, Mr. Willard said:

"The Hydrostatic Farmall 656 is the first farm tractor that gives the user any speed he wants from 9 in reverse to 20 m.p.h. forward, and changes speed on-the-go without the use of a clutch and without changing the throttle."

Hydrostatic drive is defined by engineers as an energy transfer system composed of a hydraulic pump and a hydraulic motor for transmission of power. The engine drives the pump to produce a pressurized oil flow, and the hydraulic motor converts the oil flow back to rotary output power. Hydrostatic drive was selected by IHC engineers because it best met the requirements for an infinitely variable speed ratio, with a smooth uninterrupted flow of power.

Quick response is listed as a prime advantage because of the "solid link" characteristics of the fluid between the pump and motor which permits the operator to get exactly what he calls for with the control at the instance he desires.

Just as a water faucet can be adjusted anywhere between completely closed and completely open, so can the flow of oil between the hydraulic pump and motor. The exact output speed desired can be obtained simply by adjusting the flow in the hydrostatic transmission. Reversing the direction of the flow reverses the direction output rotation and travel. And — all of this can be done without changing engine speed. The principles of hydrostatic transmissions have been known to engineers for many years. So far, their acknowledged benefits of easy control have been offset by excessive cost of the hydraulic components or by power-wasting losses. These facts have limited applications of hydrostatic transmission in tractors to a few (often well publicized) prototype or experimental units.

Now, however, IHC engineers, some of whom are hydraulic-power specialists, have perfected a hydrostatic transmission with an efficiency, ruggedness, and durability necessary to meet the demands of regular on-the-farm use. A direct comparison of hydrostatic with the conventional gear-type transmission shows that the Hydrostatic version is more versatile, with slightly increased fuel consumption to produce a similar amount of work. However, the true measure of the cost of work is not simply gallons of fuel for the work produced, but rather total productivity of the tractor. Operator control of the International 656 hydrostatic tractor is the ultimate in simplicity. For all except light drawbar loads, the engine is operated at rated speed, 3200 rpm. There is no conventional gear shift lever. Instead, a speed-ratio control lever, located just to the left of the steering wheel, is simply moved forward from its neutral position to provide any forward speed desired between 0 and 20 mph. Moving the lever back through neutral and toward the rear produces any reverse speed desired between 0 and 9 mph. An adjustable stop permits returning to exactly the same forward speed setting each time after slowing, stopping or reversing the tractor.

A foot-n'-inch pedal, located in the conventional clutch-pedal position provides an alternate control for emergency stops, or for more convenient foot control when backing up to—or attaching implements.

A range selector lever, located just to the right of the steering wheel, controls a two speed gear transmission between the hydrostatic transmission and the differential gear. This transmission can be shifted whenever the speed-ratio control lever is in neutral, or whenever the foot-n'-inch pedal is depressed.

This two speed transmission permits the hydrostatic transmission to be operated in its most efficient range. For all heavy drawbar draft loads, the transmission is operated in low range, 0 to 8 mph. For light draft loads, the high range is used, 0 to 20 mph.

For heavy draft loads such as plowing, the operator selects the lower of the two gear ranges, sets the throttle to produce rated engine speed of 2300 r.p.m., and moves the speed-ratio control lever forward as far as possible without causing the engine speed to drop below rated r.p.m. If a tough spot is encountered which overloads the engine, the reduction in engine speed is shown by the tachometer tells the operator to move the speed-ratio control lever rearward just enough to ease the load on the engine and permit it to regain rated speed. When past the tough spot, the speed-ratio control lever can be eased forward again to increase speed just enough to maintain rated load on the engine.

"With the new 656," Mr. Willard said, "farmers can plant at the exact speed with hydrostatic drive, and apply chemicals precisely at specified rates. Furthermore, they can bale and chop choosing the exact speed to utilize full capacity, with one control, go faster through light crops, and slower when it's heavy." In every instance, average speed is faster, Mr. Willard commented.

"Farmers can change speed as often as they like, without stopping or suffering any time loss. No matter how often they change speed, the tractor's engine keeps right on delivering full power to the PTO hydraulic system. "This hydrostatic all-speed drive is an industry "first," Mr. Willard concluded, pointed out that IHC provided torque amplifier shift on-the-go hydrostatic combines and hydrostatic windrowers, which were other industry "firsts" to serve the farmer. AGT Plans To Bury 8,200 Miles Of Cable This Year

Where conditions throughout the province at a cost are good this amount can be in- of 10.8 million dollars. creased and in some instances up to 20 miles have been plowed in one day. Problems arise in areas where rivers and muskeg are prevalent. Days are sometimes lost recovering and repairing machines that have been put out of commission by these natural hazards.

Before men and machines can take to the fields to begin the actual plowing a great deal of planning and fieldwork must be done by AGT staffs. Priorities are established by taking into consideration the condition of existing equipment, unserved customers, the amount of outstanding loans and the total cost of the project per customer.

Once the areas to be plowed are determined the Rural Development section must contact every farm-house in the area and plot the location of interested parties on a map. This information is given to the Plant Extension Engineers who carry out transmission checks and order the required central office equipment. Outside Plant Engineering—Rurals, then measure and check out the planned route and draw the working plans. Bids from individual contractors come in to the District Construction Superintendent in the early Spring and plowing begins as soon as the frost is gone.

Since 1964, when the Rural Buried Cable Program began approximately 13,000 subscribers have availed themselves of the four-party or individual line service that this system is designed to provide. To date 275 mutual companies have been offered and accepted integration with AGT, leaving 742 for future development.

It is planned for this program to be completed in 1973 at a cost of 60 million dollars and there is expected to be 60,000 subscribers using four-party buried service. This system will provide almost trouble free service for rural subscribers. Being protected as it is from man and the elements the only hazards it faces is someone, or a rodent who ignores the "Please Call Before You Dig" signs that are posted along the cable route.

The progress which the Jewish people have achieved in Israel, by their industriousness and ingenuity, in literally making the desert bloom, has been fantastic. At the same time, it is impossible not to feel a very real sympathy for many Arab people, especially those thousands who were driven from their homes in 1948 when the UN gave their lands without compensation to

BREAKING THE FIRST FURROW . . .

The first furrow—the western homesteader breaking ground. He reached the virgin prairie beyond the end of the railway line by a canvas-covered wagon or "prairie-schooner" which he slept in if the weather was bad or the ground swampy. At other times, he slept in a tent. His first chore on reaching his location was to break enough ground to plant a crop. This established his ownership. He set up a pole at the edge of his plot, tied a cloth to it, directed his plow to it, and drove a parallel furrow beside the first one, back to the starting point. Not until his plowing and seeding were finished did he begin to build a permanent shelter.

The prairie pioneer in some ways had an easier life than the first settlers in Eastern Canada. He did not have to carve his farm out of virgin forest, or carry his grain to the mill on his back over rugged winding trails. He could haul it to the nearest elevator by wagon across open land. But his home was often many miles from his nearest neighbors. The loneliness was bad in summer and almost unendurable in winter; some of the early settlers gave up and pulled out. But by 1911, immigration to Canada had swelled to nearly one-third of a million per year, and most of them were settling on the prairies.
